Lucia di Lammermoor.

A just enthusiasm for the novels of Scott was universal when Donizetti, at the height of a brilliant career (to be so tragically shortened), sat down to work into music a libretto sketched by Salvatore Cammerano on the lines of "The Bride of Lammermoor." Every Italian opera-maker of the hour—an hour highly expressive of Italy's lyric drama—burned to set a Walter Scott story to music. The hack-librettist was doing some of his fellest work. Scott was a special favorite of Donizetti's active and decidedly literary mind. He had already produced one "Scott opera" (to-day quite properly forgotten), "Il Castello di Kenilworth," written at about the same time with "Parisina" and "Anna Bolena." With maturer powers, and with the riper art of his "Lucrezia Borgia" (1833), he now began to dress the simple tale of Lucy Ashton and the Master of Ravenswood—as diluted for him by Cammerano. It was, as has been noted, a time of flimsy Italian opera-books. Composers were not fussy. But we know that Donizetti was so little suited with Cammerano's way of making a text for "Lucia," that he re-wrote parts of it, and practically supplied the words and situation for the last act, as he is said to have done for "La Favorita." Let us be kind, and believe that Donizetti improved on Cammerano, and that the French librettists who, in time, revised all the text, improved on Donizetti.

Music Lib.

It was not the first time that Scott's touching romance had been turned into opera. But the scores by Donizetti's contemporaries—Carafa (1829), Ricci, by Mazzucato (1834), and Bredal (1832)—are long ago forgotten, with their thin contents. The story of the unhappy Bride, as transcribed by Cammerano and Donizetti himself, is a waterish and feeble report of Scott. It is so familiar that it need not be recited now in detail. We will sketch it briefly. The opera was originally written and given as a two-act work: now it is made a three-act one.

The opera opens in the sombre gardens of Ravenswood Castle, with a group of its guards, and Normanno, their head, excitedly talking of discovering whether some stranger is not prowling around the estate on secret mischief. Lord Enrico Ashton learns from Normanno that the intruder may be no less than Edgardo di Ravenswood, their dispossessed enemy. But, worse still, Normanno soon adds, in the hearing of the grave Raimondo (who, to do him justice, seems not to have guessed it), that Lucia is 'stealing interviews with a mysterious lover, who must be the hated Edgardo; and relates the story of Lucia's deliverance from a mad bull "while returning from a visit to the grave of her mother." The retainers come in, their errand successful, and describe how a stranger has dashed away from them, on his charger, at the ruined tower. Enrico swears vengeance, and the chorus unite in his wish.

The second scene introduces Lucia, with Alisa, awaiting Edgardo in the lonely park, by the haunted spring. Lucia has scarcely finished telling its legend of ill-omen, and her own dark dreams of a wretched ending to their secret love-affair, when Edgardo enters. He announces that this is a parting; he must leave Scotland that night, on a political errand to France. They discuss—in operatic fashion—their dangers and plans; pledge their mutual faithfulness, and separate in anguish.

With the third tableau, a lapse of some months is supposed to have occurred. The tyrannical Enrico has arranged to give Lucia's hand to Arturo Bucklaw. Lucia has not heard from Edgardo, the cruel brother having suppressed the lover's letters. She already half-doubts. In a harsh interview, Enrico now enjoins the marriage with Bucklaw. He produces the usual operatic and dramatic convenience, a forged letter, that makes Edgardo faithless to Lucia. The unhappy girl is overcome. The guests for the betrothal are already come. A jubilant ceremony begins. The contract is signed by the half-swooning Lucia, when Edgardo enters. In a tempest of misunderstanding and wounded pride, he denounces Lucia, insults her brother and the guests, and quits the apartment with life only through Raimondo's good offices in the turbulent scene.

The third act finds Edgardo gloomily reflecting, while a storm is crashing around his lonely chamber in the Wolfscrag Tower. But even here Enrico Ashton seeks him out with a challenge, and a meeting is arranged. The act's second scene is the wedding of Lucia and Bucklaw. The festive choruses are broken by Raimondo's sudden entrance with the news that Lucia is a maniac-bride, and that she has taken her new-made husband's life. The distracted girl comes into the room as Raimondo ends his story. She raves—melodiously—and even her brother's anger cannot calm her. As Lucia is led away, Raimondo rebukes Normanno as the tale-teller who has brought all this misery on the Ashtons.

The opera's final scene presents Edgardo among the graves of his race. Grief and despair have broken his heart. He is resolved to take his own life.* With his last reflections, the sad-hearted Lammermoor folk and some of the Castle guests approach, singing a doleful chant; and a passing-bell is heard. Raimondo appears and discloses the fact that Lucia's madness has ended in her own death. Edgardo apostrophizes her pure spirit, declares that he and she will not long be parted, and stabs himself—dying as the chorus about him piously pray that Heaven may pardon such human errors.

Such is Scott's novel as utilized by Donizetti, in a way amusingly unjust to its own episodes and characters. This operatic Lucia has none of that queer mixture of levity, caprice and pride possessing Lucy Ashton, along with all her sentimentality. The Edgardo in this libretto is merely a regulation betrayed-lover of the stage, with no touch of Ravenswood's morbid dignity, except where we just catch it in Donizetti's last scene. Our operatic Arturo Ashton has few traces of the original Sholto Ashton. And as for the strongest types in "The Bride of Lammermoor," Lord Ashton, the Keeper, Lady Ashton, the impressive figure of Blind Alice (not even caricatured by Cammerano's Alisa), old Balderstone the garrulous, and the swaggering Craigengelt—alas, they are left out altogether! We have paper-doll personages, compared with those in the tale. But still there is a general if far-away consonance with it. And it is only fair to remark, in reviewing this typical libretto of the Donizettian, Bellinian, and early-Verdian epoch, that Scott himself slighted opportunities in his book. Donizetti's warbling young lady in her bridal frock does not hint at Scott's poor Lucy Ashton, shuddering in the chimney, raving mad, and hissing out: "So, you've ta'en up your bonny bridegroom!" But Scott failed to make his characters act out the bloody tragedy of Lucy's wedding; he merely described it. Perhaps, faithfulness to it, in any way save by a conventional "madness" for Lucia, seemed to Donizetti too brutal for the public. It is interesting to speculate what some of the librettists and composer-librettists of our day—Boito, du Locle, Illica—would make of "The Bride of Lammermoor." I suspect that Donizetti's method of disposing of Edgardo by a public decease, amid his ancestral tombs, with Lucia's funeral train at hand (in which "situation" Donizetti and Wagner's "Tannhäuser" are curiously brought together), would never be encouraged nowadays. We should have Edgardo struggling in the "Kelpie" quicksand behind blue gauzes, with a frantic aria parlante and very stormy orchestration. I expect, too, that we would begin the opera with the novel's wild bull, and the deliverance of the heroine and Sir Henry. We can hardly keep the bulls out of "Carmen." But, seriously, there is eternally good stuff for a tragic opera in Scott's novel. Be it commended to Puccini or Leoncavallo or Smareglia.

Moreover, while we may smile over the libretto of "Lucia di Lammermoor," it is unfair in these days of Wagnerian and French influences on Italian opera, to treat Donizetti's work with contempt, and to regard it as does one critic of note, who calls it "a sham tragedy"—an "obsolete prima-donna opera." "Lucia di Lammermoor" is sentimental; it is wide of the Gluck and Mozart and Beethoven and pre-Wagnerian model, to a fault. But it has musical beauty in lavish measure, and constant throbs of true dramatic feeling. Its best pages do just what they should do—express the sentimental course of a slight, sad, old-fashioned love-story with a background of romance. There is no hint of local color in its music, but there is not much of that in Scott. There is a poignant sweetness, every now and then, to haunt the ear. Now it is a cavatina like “Regnava nel silenzio,” or the grave little introductions to certain scenes, or the passionate sextet “Chi mi frena,” or Edgar’s “Tu che a Dio” scena, that attests how the composer expressed the spirit of a story as melancholy as the soul of Shakespeare’s Jacques. The jiggling choruses and thin instrumentation grieve our ears, but there is less conventionality in the latter business, at least, than Donizetti often shows. Wagner writes in 1841, of “La Favorita,” that that work of Donizetti, “besides the acknowledged merits of the Italian school,” possessed “superior refinement and dignity.” The same comment applies to “Lucia”; borrowed from the pen of a master least apt to praise music of such a flavor. The slight, fluent partition is Italian in its casual elegance.

And as to its popularity, “Lucia” seems to be perennial so long as singers really sing. Every leading soprano di coloratura studies it and keeps Lucia a part in repertory. Every tenor must have Edgar’s rôle at command, and his black cloak in wardrobe. To sing Lucia perfectly is to be a consummate vocalist. As to deeper qualities, why, if singers will not think of anything but their scales and their shakes, then probably they will not realize with what effect Donizetti’s simple recitatives may be delivered. Any such part is a lesson in pure diction.

Indeed, “Lucia di Lammermoor” illustrates Donizetti when serious—not laughing, as when he composes the “Elisire” or “La Figlia del Reggimento,” or the equally inimitable “Don Pasquale”—perhaps better than any of his works. It has always divided supremacy with the firmer “La Favorita.” It fuses, as does not even “La Favorita,” his florid and his dramatic manners. Of all his long list of works—some sixty-seven operas, grave and gay—few survive: really no more than the three humorous masterpieces named and “La Favorita,” “Lucia,” “Lucrezia Borgia,” and “Linda.” But they are enough to represent firmly a genius surpassing Bellini, and influencing the early Verdian scores, more directly than generally is understood, and Ponchielli, to say nothing of others. And it is interesting to notice that out of all the endless list of “Walter Scott operas” by composers of almost every nationality to “books” in as many tongues, only “Lucia di Lammermoor” can be considered as keeping the stage, in real repertory to-day; with the exception of Marschner’s fine “Templer und Jüdin” (based on “Ivanhoe”), still a favorite in German and Austrian opera-houses. The rival “Lucias” noted above, Carafa’s “Prison d’Edimbourg” (on “The Heart of Midlothian”), Bizet’s “Jolie Fille de Perth,” Balfe’s “Il Talismano,” and dozens more, are all mute to-day. Sir Arthur Sullivan’s recent “Ivanhoe” has not made its way with much vigor or probability of life.

“Lucia” was no heroic score. But it was the outcome of a musical fecundity that we may believe would have achieved higher fruits, but for the cloud of madness—a strange coincidence in the case of a composer who wrote so many “mad-scenes”—coming to Donizetti in Paris, in 1845, and imprisoning him in an asylum until his merciful death in 1848.

Act II.

Il Contratto nuziale. (The Marriage-contract.)

Nº 5. "Lucia fra poco a te verrà."

Moderato.

Introduction and Recit.

Apartments of Sir Henry Ashton.

Piano.

The musical score for the introduction and recitativo is written for a full orchestra and piano. The key signature is one sharp (F#), and the time signature is common time (C). The score is divided into several systems, each with a piano part and an orchestral part. The piano part begins with a forte (ff) dynamic, while the orchestral part starts with a piano (p) dynamic. The tempo is marked 'Moderato'. The score includes various musical notations such as notes, rests, and dynamic markings. The orchestral part includes staves for Flute and Clarinet (Fl. Cl.), 2nd Violins and Violas (2nd Vlns. & Viole.), Trombones (Tromboni.), and Horns and Trombones (Cor. & Tromboni.). The piano part includes staves for Violins (Vin.) and a right-hand (r.h.) part. The score concludes with a 'calando' marking, indicating a gradual decrease in volume.

Norman. Recit.

Sir Henry Ashton. (seated beside a table.)

Tutti.

The musical score for the recitativo and tutti section is written for a full orchestra and piano. The key signature is one sharp (F#), and the time signature is common time (C). The score is divided into two systems. The first system is for the recitativo, featuring a piano part and an orchestral part. The piano part begins with a forte (f) dynamic, while the orchestral part starts with a piano (p) dynamic. The tempo is marked 'Moderato'. The orchestral part includes staves for Flute and Clarinet (Fl. Cl.), 2nd Violins and Violas (2nd Vlns. & Viole.), Trombones (Tromboni.), and Horns and Trombones (Cor. & Tromboni.). The piano part includes staves for Violins (Vin.) and a right-hand (r.h.) part. The score concludes with a 'Tutti' marking, indicating a general increase in volume.

Act III.

Nº 11. "Qui del padre ancor respira.," Storm, Recitative and Duet.

Hall in the Castle of Ravenswood; a rude table and an old arm-chair are the only furniture. At the back a practicable door and an open casement. It is night, and a storm is raging. Edgar is seated by the table, plunged in thought; after a few moments he rises, goes to the window and looks out.

A musical score for the song "The Rose Tree". The score is written for voice and piano. The voice part is on a single staff with a treble clef, and the piano accompaniment is on two staves (treble and bass clefs). The key signature is one flat (B-flat), and the time signature is 2/4. The lyrics are: "me, wait per for". The piano accompaniment features a rhythmic pattern of eighth and sixteenth notes, with some chords. The voice part has a melody with eighth and sixteenth notes, including some grace notes. The score is divided into four measures. The first measure contains the lyrics "me, wait", and the second measure contains "per for". The third and fourth measures are empty. The score is written in a classic, handwritten style.

Piano.

The musical score is written for piano and includes parts for various instruments. The key signature has two flats (B-flat and E-flat), and the time signature is common time (C). The score is divided into systems, each with a grand staff (treble and bass clef) for the piano and individual staves for other instruments.

- System 1: Piano (Tutti f), Cor. (Corns), and strings. Dynamics range from f to p.
- System 2: Piano (fp), Vln. (Violins), and Ob. and Cl. (Oboes and Clarinets). Dynamics include fp and p.
- System 3: Piano and Fag. (Bassoon). The piano part features a dense, rhythmic texture.
- System 4: Piano and Brass. The piano part continues with a similar rhythmic pattern.
- System 5: Piano and Vln. and Fag. (Violins and Bassoon). The piano part maintains its rhythmic intensity.
- System 6: Piano and Fl. (Flute). The piano part concludes with a final flourish.
